 1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to recognize that a problem exists. This is often done by comparing current performance with a desired state or goal.   2. Once a problem is identified, the next step is to define the problem more precisely. This involves determining the scope of the problem, the resources available, and the constraints that may be affecting the problem.   3. The third step is to analyze the problem. This involves identifying the causes of the problem, the factors that are contributing to it, and the potential solutions that are available.   4. The fourth step is to develop a plan of action. This involves determining the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem, the resources that will be needed, and the timeline for the solution.   5. The fifth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring the progress of the solution.   6. The sixth step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the actual results with the desired state and determining whether the problem has been solved.   7. The seventh step is to document the solution. This involves recording the steps that were taken to solve the problem, the resources that were used, and the results that were achieved. 	 1.
